Vector Security® Networks to Showcase Single-Sourced Physical Security and Managed Network Services Solutions at 2017 NRF Protect Conference

Retailers will benefit by working with a one-source provider to build scalable, efficient networks and edge applications, versus relying on a device-centric approach.

PITTSBURGH, June 21, 2017 -- Vector Security® Networks, the single source solutions provider for managed network services and physical security to multi-site businesses across North America, will showcase how managed networks have evolved to include physical security and managed applications at the edge. Our team, in concert with our unequalled Enterprise NOC support, will highlight our “whole network strategy” approach to design, engineering, delivery, and ongoing management of hardware agnostic infrastructure, broadband services, and critical applications based on unique customer needs at NRF Protect.

Vector Security Networks currently manages or plays a critical role in maintaining hundreds of thousands of network devices, from corporate firewalls to endpoints. The company will demonstrate how reliable bandwidth, PCI Compliance, cloud-based tools, and a scalable WAN architecture come together seamlessly to support multi-site business needs. With deep roots in physical security and the proven delivery of solutions on customer networks, the team at our NRF Protect booth is prepared to discuss the latest applications and technologies in both physical security and networking, including SD-WAN, 4G-LTE backup, and secure Wi-Fi.

“We understand that each retailer’s network is unique. Different networks require different solutions, and not every ‘on paper’ design will work optimally in a real-world application,” said Mike Grady, Executive Vice President of Vector Security Networks. “That is why our one source solution is unique. Your network needs more than a ‘great product.’ Your network is more than a ‘box.’ Retailers need a company that can deliver what they need under one roof...a company with the expertise and experience to advise and adapt. And we will demonstrate how we stand out as the one source solution.”

Leading with unmatched expertise in security and protection, Vector Security Networks works with top retailers and multi-site businesses to support their needs for bandwidth, security, video, and managed services that create cost savings and efficiency while addressing critical requirements for cybersecurity and performance.

Visit Vector Security Networks at Booth #807 at NRF Protect, June 27-28 at the Gaylord Harbor Resort and Convention Center in Washington, DC to see our team in action and how we deliver one source solutions for physical security and managed network services to today’s leading brands.
